

VIEW YOUR TEACHERS FAVORITES.

Your teacher may choose a favorite Scilinks web page that he/she would like you to view. To see these, follow these simple steps:

1. Click on “Favorite Websites” in Quick Links

The screenshot shows the Scilinks website interface. On the left is a search box with the text "Search by Textbook Code" and a "Search" button. Below it are "Recent Code Searches" with three entries: "he123". The main content area is titled "Recommended Sites" and includes a sub-header "For Students". It lists three sites: "Gadget Anatomy" (3 stars), "The Unnatural Museum-What's a Fossil" (3 stars), and "A DNA Workshop" (3 stars). Below these is "Radio Transmission" (3 stars). On the right side, there is a "Quick Links" section with two items: "Favorite Websites" and "Saved Searches". A red arrow points to "Favorite Websites". Below the quick links is a contact email: "Questions/Comments? Email us: scilinks\_support@nsta.org". At the bottom right is a "Student Resources" section featuring a Siemens logo and the text "WE CAN CHANGE THE WORLD CHALLENGE".

2. On this page, you will find both your personal favorites, as well as those of your teacher's. To see your teacher's suggestions, click on "View Favorites" again.

3. Finally, click on the title for the web site your teacher has shared. This will open a new browser/tab, revealing the targeted page, in this case, Mr. Brown is sharing a page that reveals the intricacies of the human heart. For those looking, the page doesn't explore the frailties exposed when in love... alas, perhaps next time.
